

WITH THE OIL MEN

Emery Brennenman, accompanied by his wife, is here from Pittsburgh and will make Tulsa his home hereafter. He comes from genuine oil-country stock, his father being a prominent oil man and his grandfather is Lou Emery, well known wherever oil is produced.

W. A. Schlueter, head of the Repairs Supply Company, left last night for New York city and other eastern points, where he will endeavor to purchase supplies which are badly needed here. Mr. Schlueter says that it has been practically impossible to obtain material to fill tanks which have been hooked up during the past few weeks, and he expects to make a personal appeal at a number of large factories.

C. J. Wrightsman had for a guest at the Petroleum Club at luncheon yesterday the Justice of the Supreme Court, Justice Kane and a warm welcome was given him. Justice Kane has since real knowledge of the oil business and the needs of the oil men than any one individual connected with the administration at Oklahoma City and has at all times defended the fact by a most impartial hearing where oil interests are involved with sound judgment that will stand for years to come as precedents for other oilers to follow. He has seldom visited Tulsa and perhaps never since his famous decision that forever put an end to the activities of the tax collector who proposed taxing undeveloped leases and did, in fact, succeed in getting one concern held to paying a tax not paid to prevent a double tax, which in itself shows the iniquity of the entire proceeding. When Justice Kane rendered his decision it was so plainly evident that taxation undeveloped property or leases which were then in existence had never attempted a hold-up scheme of this kind in the state of Oklahoma since or ever will. To tax undeveloped leases would be like taxing the limitable vistas of hope, was the way the judge put it.

H. J. Pfeifer, chief engineer of the Terminal Railroad Association, Louisian spent Sunday with George F. Brigham, president of the Commerce Petroleum company.

Mr. Pfeifer says the Terminal Railroad association operates under the United States railroad administration as a unit and makes success possible. We have to go far to find the best oil fields, both as to traffic and operation. The normal traffic at the present time is 12,000 cars daily, handling all the cars passing through St. Louis and a large percentage of tonnage originating at St. Louis and East St. Louis. We have realized for some time what the delay means in money value to privately owned equipment, both in earnings and rentals. All petroleum products are given prompt service and I am currently returning from an extensive trip through the cities of the Pacific northwest and surprised I had seen everything in up-to-date roads, but that's off to Tulsa. It beats them all.

I want to see more of Tulsa and the oil fields. My good old friend, George Brigham, has given me some hints, and we are much indebted to Mr. Miller, Durfee, and driving around the city and his delightful hospitality. He never missed a thing beautiful or industrial.
